South Surrey–White Rock
Member of Parliament

MOVING INTO FALL

September 2025

Fall is here, and it brings with it autumn leaves, hot chocolate weather, and a new sitting of Parliament.

Your government has been diligently laying the groundwork for a new Canadian economy, with renewed fiscal discipline. We've begun investing in housing construction, greenlighting national projects to kickstart our economy, and extending a variety of supports to businesses impacted by US tariffs, whilst building new relationships with many other countries.

As I convene with Parliament in Ottawa to prepare for the tabling of the next budget on November 4, I'm keeping my community in South Surrey-White Rock in my thoughts, and I will return as often as possible, but I will miss this vibrant place we call home. I'd like to extend you all my well-wishes for Thanksgiving, Diwali, and all the other community events that we and our friends and neighbours will celebrate this fall.

Build Canada Homes

Building a home in Canada is about to get a lot easier, as your new government takes action to make housing more attainable.

Prime Minister Mark Carney announced the launch of Build Canada Homes (BCH), a mission-driven agency with $13 billion in initial funding that will transform how we build housing in Canada. BCH is central to our commitment to reach 500,000 housing starts a year in the next 10 years.

Nation-Building

Our government has begun fast-tracking projects of major economic interest to the country. 5 projects have been designated for expedited approval, two of which are in BC—the Kitimat LNG Phase II, and the Red Chris Copper and Gold Mine.

Major projects like this will bring investment into the country and create good jobs for Canadian workers.
